Radar Group Expands Asia Pacific Institutional Research Division

Radar Group today announced the acquisition of a specialist Asia/Pacific institution research company, Carter Research Consulting, to strengthen its existing research capabilities.

Carter Research Consulting (CRC), is a specialist provider of institutional perception research and consulting services to exchange-listed companies in Australian and Asia.

Started in 2008 by Julie Carter, CRC has quickly become one of Australasia's most respected institutional research consultancies boasting as clients some of the largest listed companies in Australia and Asia across a broad range of sectors.

Services now offered as part of the Radar Group include company perception studies, post financial results studies, global market and sector research, roadshow feedback reports and evolving policy issues advice.

Julie Carter will head the expanded Research division, allowing Radar Group to develop its services and play a vital role in helping management and boards of listed companies gain insight into the thinking of key equity investors.
